"Das dreiteilige Stück ist mit eminenter Klangphantasie für ein differenziertes Orchester geschrieben. Es beginnt langsam mit tonal indifferenten, weitmaschig gesetzten Akkorden von großem atmosphärischem Reiz. Aus ihrer Statik lösen sich motivische Gestalten, von denen eine aus steigender Quart und fallendem Ganzton den lebhaften Mittelteil und die Reprise beherrscht. Taktwechsel und asymmetrische Rhythmen Kennzeichnen den Still, der in Bläsermelismen orientalischen Charakter, doch auch viel eigene Handschrift zeigt. Grundtönen oft zustrebend, eher modal als tonal, ist die Sprache unverkennbar modern, ohne einer der gängigen Avantgarden anzugehören. Der Komponist konnte für den starken Erfolg danken." "This aesthetically magnificent and majestic masterpiece was presented in three movements.

The first movement marked 'Modéré' began with atonal, ethereal, filmy, gauzelike shades and tints plus interludes of meditative solo guitar. A relaxed tension inspired new sounds, dimensions, dissonance and resolutions. Dialogue with the celesta created a sense of profound drama. The second movement, 'Andante', was affirmatively masculine, resolutely tender. Silky strings and an emphatic harp created Oriental atmosphere reminiscent of a Japanese print... 'Vite et très gai' marked the last movement. Novel, unique and highly complex rhythms led to firm resolution, romantic hope and warmth. Interweaving melodies and themes became vertical, horizontal and diagonal gems of variation and beat. The final draped tones and lush dissonances drifted into space toward Nirvana and the celestial... concluding a work of great artistic merit." (Earl A. Schreiber, Winona Daily News, 12 Apr 1978)

Reviews of participants, of the International Harp Week, Laren 1963:

"I think the Concerto is one of the best modern works written for the harp. The harp part is difficult but quite possible and will bring the students and harp players to a high level. I hope it will be played often and become one of the works performed in harp repertoire." (Maria Korchinska, England)

"Ce doit être une grande joie pour chaque harpiste-soliste de jouer le concerto de Ami Maayani. Le compositeur connaît très bien l'instrument et c'est une exception que la harpe est vraiment solo et pas obligatoire." (Phia Berghout, Holland)

"Je pense que ce concerto est remarquable et certainement une oeuvre très précieux pour le repertoire contemporain de la harpe. La partie de harpe est traitée très habiliment et l'orchestre est merveilleux de couleur. J'ai une énorme plaisir en écoutant la première audition et je félicite l'auteur et l'interprète Susanna Mildonian de tout coeur." (Marcel Grandjany, USA)

"The two main themes of the concerto are a Chinese folk tune and a Jewish melody. The entire structural layout of Maayani's piano concerto was profoundly influenced by the adoption of the Chinese tune, and its mixture with elements of Jewish music [results in] a highly colorful and richly textured development. It seems as if a live dialogue between those two ancient nations, the Chinese and the Jewish, is taking place... Although Maayani follows traditional guidelines in this composition, the way he weeds out the old form in order to integrate the new into his work is a model that our Chinese composers can make use of. Maayani's superb skills in traditional methods of composition creatively join together the significant part of characteristic Jewish music (ornaments, compound beat, compound harmony, etc.) in the masterwork with Chinese pentatonic scales. He succeeds in creating magnificent Oriental scenery in a Mediterranean style." (Zi Mo, 'Music Weekly' Journal, 09 Jun 2006)

"... interesting and colorful music, distinctive in character and particular to its composer, while the genre is Western, melodic treatment and rhythmic patterns of the music of the Near East. Primarily a melodic piece, the highly inflected line occasionally resembles Cantillation, at other times is melismatic as in the second movement. The last movement is rhythmic. A clear and open texture allows the soloist to express the embellished line freely. Like a true concerto there is a good balance of activity between solo passages and orchestral passages." "This music is like a rushing, mighty river at times, and at others like a broadly flowing mellow stream, which is nurtured by many springs but is characterized by an unambiguous intellectual landscape. The demanding solo part acts as an Ariadne thread through the whole structure." (Matthias Roth, Rhein-Neckar-Zeitung, 08 Feb 2002)

"The World Premiere of the dramatic three movements of the Concerto Symphonique pour Harpe which will, undoubtedly, enrich the sparse concert literature for harp, was a triumphant success... a work like a painting by Gauguin... calling forth an overwhelming association of topical flora and fauna." Text: Yitzhak Averbuch Opraz (Hebr)

2.picc.2.corA.2.bcl.2.dbn-6.4.3.1-timp.perc(4)-2harps-cel-strings

"Maayani's Hebrew Requiem is a masterpiece – monumental, profound and deeply moving. It has a wonderful balance between the instrumental and vocal parts and Yitzhak Orpaz's beautiful poetry shapes the work's spiritual world... The first movement 'To the Memory of My Father and Mother' erupts turbulently and then settles down to a dirge-like slow section which is declamatory in style. Edna Prochnik's voice rose from depth to dramatic heights with complete stability. The second movement 'Farwell: Dead, Dead is the Prophet' is no less absorbing. The choir now moves into focus, giving cries from all directions which remain unanswered. There are dialogues which are cut off. Distress and pain are everywhere. The third movement, the scherzo-'Ode' is wild. In classic A-B-A form its main A section 'Halleluya' uses a basic motif of simple diatonic, three-tone sequence of two major seconds which assume overpowering strength. When the motif returns after the lyrical B section the effect is breathtaking. The fourth movement is a wild dithyrambic hymn in honour of Jerusalem. Maayani has always had a marvelous talent for Orchestration and his Hebrew requiem opens up ever new horizons in his music. The essence of the Middle East is clearly there but the work also encourages a more universal language." (Benyamin Bar-Am, Jerusalem Post, 11 Apr 1990)

"The music of Régalim contains all of Maayani's characteristic features – oriental melodic pattern built out of small intervals, heterophony, obstinate melodic and rhythmical repetitions, impressionistic coloring, etc. The composer gives us an almost visual description of the holy pilgrimage to the Temple: the festive Proclamation, the mysterious Prayer and the almost pagan, ecstatic Dance of Spring. In these three sections Maayani carries one away by sheer orchestral force – sweeping rhythm and melodic obstinacy... All this prepares the listener for the beautiful vocal part, a lyrical yet almost emotional interpretation of Psalm 122: the last movement, 'Procession', with its alternating vocal and instrumental parts is probably the most original part..."
