Eclipse

2003

20 min

for string quartet

"Eclipse was written in reaction to the 'Tampa Crisis' of 2001... The human drama at the heart of this power play is depicted programmatically throughout three unbroken movements... The members of Artemis held the audience in a lengthy silence after the quartet's last chord." (Lydia Steier, klassik-in-berlin.de, Oct 2004)

"... a beautifully fashioned gem... Dean's range and control of textures is outstanding, giving Eclipse a remarkable sculpted beauty that dazzles the ear." (Graham Strahle, The Australian, 12 Jul 2004)

Music for clarinet, viola and piano

cl(=bcl)-vla-pft

"... a real tour-de-force in terms of instrumental scoring. Depicting human thoughts and behaviour at night time, the music surveyed a vast array of techniques and textures, as well as contrasts of moods ranging from sombre and reflective to hyperactive and wild... a substantial and interesting work." (Anthony Ritchie, chambermusic.co.nz, 29 Jul 2005)

"Night Window, which is influenced by a painting by Dean's wife and deals with states of mind after dark. It is an atmospheric piece skilfully scored and cleverly constructed which opens with wonderfully dark bass clarinet lines paired with dense viola writing, the piano is edgy and with often staccato sounds. It has a jazz and a thirties feel to some of the writing and is reminiscent of impressionistic French works of Milhaud and others such as the jazzy Martinu pieces of the time. It also brings to mind some of the great jazz wind soloists but all in a distinctive original package." (Garth Wilshere, chambermusic.co.nz, 17 Aug 2005)

"Top-class chamber music – Dean's setting combines different aspects of memory: memory resonating in a single phrase, momentary shocks or mysterious reverie. He translated into a score how three gong strokes unfold their harmony and colour. The last movement features a quotation from Clara Schumann, held in suspense behind an 'avantgarde' veil – a wonderful artistic device from the composer, whose piece was cheered like a home victory." (Olaf Weiden, Kölnische Rundschau, 19 Jun 2006)

"Dean is a voice of fertile imagination, originality and expressive subtlety. Each of his six brief sections is ingeniously constructed for winds, strings, percussion and piano. Swirls of color pass in patterned array, while the final movement weaves a microtonal haze around a Clara Schumann piano piece, to wonderfully surreal effect. Recollections is a terrific score that goes by all too quickly." (John von Rhein, Chicago Tribune, 14 Jan 2009)

Testament

2002

14 min

for twelve violas

"Testament relates to Beethoven's desperate document written in Heiligenstadt. Bows without rosin whisper and scrape like Beethoven's erratic quill, quotes from the Rasumovsky Quartets and the Eroica flutter past in a shadowy manner, disturbingly like broken fragments in Beethoven's own failing ears. Dean's intimate experience with his colleagues, the instrument and the entire orchestra is composed into the work. The twelve instrumentalists, each with independent soloistic voices, sound together more like a hundred. This fascinating, multi-layered portrait-homage to the Berliners and their Beethoven style was the centrepiece of an electrifying concert." (Ellen Kohlhaas, Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung, 18 Jun 2003)

"Dean's Testament touched on Beethovenian profundity." (Sybill Mahlke, Der Tagesspiegel, 13 Jun 2003)

Twelve Angry Men

1996

18 min

for twelve cellos

"Twelve Angry Men takes the expressive qualities of 12 cellos and casts them as musical versions of the 12 jurors in Sidney Lumet's 1957 film of the same name... It's a great starting point for a piece of music and Dean's fine musical instincts turned string sounds into palpable human drama." (Harriet Cunningham, Sydney Morning Herald, 17 Jan 2005)

Voices of Angels1996

26 min

for violin, viola, cello, double bass and piano

"This quintet occupies an emotional landscape that is rich in character, suggestive of the creatures the composer is celebrating, packed with quicksilver touches and also vehement and driving segments that reinforce the intended image of a different angel to the cherub of sentimental religiosity."
