PREFACE

Aram Khachaturyan, born on 6 June (24 May) 1903 in Kodzhori near Tbilisi, Georgia, was born into an Armenian merchant family. His father was the owner of a bookbinding factory. His brother Suren became an actor and director; Suren's son Karen (1920-2011) became a composer.

Khachaturyan grew up in the Georgian metropolis of Tbilisi, playing the piano and tenor horn in amateur ensembles. The chaos of civil war drove him to Moscow. During the first three years there he studied biology at the Moscow State University, then violoncello and composition in Mikhail Gnessin's class at the Gnessin Musical College starting in 1922. In 1926 he became the director of the music department at the House of Armenian Culture in Moscow. Starting in 1929 he studied at the Moscow Conservatoire with Mikhail Gnessin (1883-1957), subsequently with Nikolai Myaskovsky (1881-1950), Reinhold Glière (1875-1956) and Sergei Vasilenko (1872-1956). In 1933 Khachaturyan became acquainted with Sergei Prokofiev and he married his fellow student Nina Makarova. Works of the 1930s are increasingly orientated on theorems of Socialist Realism and Stalin's directives concerning the question of nationality. The composer dedicated his examination composition, Symphony No. 1 in E minor (1934), to the first anniversary of the founding of Soviet Armenia. Spectacular 'decades of national art' motivated further folkloristic orchestral and film compositions. In 1937 Khachaturyan became Chairman of the Moscow section of the Soviet Composers' Union. From 1938 to 1941 he dedicated himself intensively to stage music and, during the Second World War, he urgently supervised propaganda works as Commissioner of Defence Music. His Symphony No. 2 in A minor (1943) reflected war events and national pathos.

The production of Soviet composers was characterised by a lack of orientation during the first post-war years. Khachaturyan's one-movement Symphony No. 3 in C major (1947) for the 30th anniversary of the October Revolution met with strong rejection in party circles. Andrei Zhdanov, cultural-political speaker of the CPSU, attacked Aram Khachaturyan, together with Vano Muradeli (1908-1970), Dmitri Shostakovich (1906-1975), Sergei Prokofiev (1891-1953) and Nikolai Myaskovsky (1881-1950) as a 'formalist'. The humiliated Khachaturyan sought refuge in composing for films, including The Russian Question (directed by Mikhail Romm, 1948), Vladimir Ilyich Lenin (directed by Mikhail Romm, 1948-1949) and The Battle of Stalingrad (directed by Vladimir Petrov, 1949). In 1950 he became a teacher of composition at the Gnessin Institute and, in 1952, Professor at the Moscow Conservatoire.

In November 1953, in 'Sovetskaya Muzyka', Khachaturyan severely criticised the system of paternalism of the Composers' Union; this was the beginning of the 'thaw' in the musical sector. His official rehabilitation took place in 1958. Khachaturyan received numerous awards, was a jury member at international competitions and travelled at home and abroad on conducting tours. He died on 1 May 1978 in Moscow and was buried in Yerevan on 6 May.

The art songs and improvisational arts of the trans-Caucasian Ashugs (folk singers) and Sazandars (instrumentalists) in oriental mughams had made Khachaturyan sensitive to complex keys and refined rhythms. In his student works, he vacillated between 'modernistic' experimentation (Valse - Caprice in C-sharp minor, 1926), folklore (Poem in C-sharp minor, 1926) and strict form (Seven Fugues, 1928-1929). The latter marked his future creative path: the integration of oriental melodic language into classical European forms. Impressionistic tone painting, conveyed by the pianist Elena Bekman-Shcherbina (1882-1951), inspired the Dance in B minor for violin and piano (1926). Towards the end of the 1920s, however, Khachaturyan forced his talent into the direction of agitprop-music, art songs and marches.

The remaining works of the 1930s are orientated on the Symphony No. 1 in E minor (1934), a folkloristic sound image in classical form and instrumentation. These include the Concerto for Piano and Orchestra in D-flat major (1936), Poem about Stalin (1938) as well as film scores. For the 'Decade of Armenian Art' in Moscow (1939), Khachaturyan composed the ballet Happiness. Out of this was created the famous Armenian ballet Gayaneh in 1942. Georgian lezginka, Russian dance, Armenian shalakho, Azerbaijani uzundara, Kurdish sabre dance and Ukrainian gopak all find their stylisations here. Khachaturyan combines occidental triadic harmony with trans-Caucasian dissonances and melismas. The Concerto for Violin and Orchestra in D minor (1940) is a further product of this phase. In the Symphony No. 2 in E minor (1943), permeated with the subject of war, Armenian-Azerbaijani melodies are contrasted with the medieval funerary sequence 'Dies i rae'. The Concerto for Violoncello and Orchestra in E minor (1946) also reflects ideas from Symphony No. 2. In the same year Three Concert Arias, dedicated to his wife Nina Makarova, came into being. Of all works, it was precisely the Third Symphony in C major (1947), the bombastic 'Poem of Victory' with triple orchestral scoring, organ and 15 trumpets, that became a victim of party criticism.

During that same year Khachaturyan wrote the first volume of his Children's Album for Piano (1947), a 'laboratory' of his compositional techniques, and film scores based on folksongs. His last stage work of the Stalin era was the ballet Spartacus (1950-1954): chromaticism symbolises decadent Rome, whilst diatonicism and major triads represent the slaves' urge for freedom.

During the 1960s Khachaturyan again revived old trans-Caucasian forms of music-making: he composed Rhapsodies for violin (1961), violoncello (1963) and piano (1968) with orchestra. Only the Piano Sonata of 1961 shows an approach reflecting detachment from pure folklore and a tendency towards distortion of material. With his last compositions – Fantasy-Sonata for violoncello solo in C major (1974), Monologue-Sonata for violin solo (1975) and Lied-Sonata for viola solo (1976), Khachaturyan completed his return to trans-Caucasian melody.

VORWORT

Aram Chatschaturjan, geboren am 6. Juni (24. Mai) 1903 in Kodschori bei Tbilisi, Georgien, entstammte einer armenischen Kaufmannsfamilie. Der Vater war Besitzer einer Buchbindereiwerkstatt. Sein Bruder Suren wurde Schauspieler und Regisseur, dessen Sohn Karen (1920-2011) Komponist.

Chatschaturjan wuchs in der georgischen Metropole Tbilisi auf und spielte Klavier und Tenorhorn in Liebhaberensembles. Bürgerkriegswirren trieben ihn nach Moskau. Dort studierte er zunächst drei Jahre lang Biologie, 1922 dann Violoncello und Komposition in Michail Gnessins Klasse an der Gnessin-Musikschule. 1926 wurde er Chef der Musikabteilung am Moskauer Haus der Kultur Armeniens. Ab 1929 studierte er am Moskauer Konservatorium erst bei Michail Gnessin (1883-1956), dann bei Nikolai Mjaskowski (1881-1950), Reinhold Glière (1875-1956) und Sergej Wassilenko (1872-1956). 1933 lernte Chatschaturjan Sergej Prokofjew kennen, und er heiratete seine Kommilitonin Nina Makarowa. Werke der 30er Jahre orientierten sich zunehmend an Theoremen des sozialistischen Realismus und Stalins Direktiven zur Nationalitätenfrage. Seine Examensarbeit, die Symphonie Nr. 1 e-moll (1934), widmete der Komponist dem Jahrestag der Gründung Sowjetarmeniens. Spektakuläre ,Dekaden nationaler Kunst' motivierten weitere folkloristische Orchester- und Filmkompositionen. 1937 wurde Chatschaturjan zum Vorsitzenden der Moskauer Sektion des Sowjetischen Komponistenverbandes ernannt. 1938-1941 widmete er sich intensiv der Bühnenmusik, im Zweiten Weltkrieg überwachte er als Beauftragter für Verteidigungsmusik vordringlich Propagandawerke. Seine Symphonie Nr. 2 a-moll (1943) reflektierte Kriegsgeschehen und nationales Pathos.

Orientierungslosigkeit kennzeichnete das Schaffen der Sowjetkomponisten in den ersten Nachkriegsjahren. Chatschaturjans einsätzige Symphonie Nr. 3 C-dur (1947) zum 30. Jahrestag der Oktoberrevolution stieß in Parteikreisen auf starke Ablehnung. Andrej Schdanow, kulturpolitischer Sprecher der KPdSU, attakierte Aram Chatschaturjan gemeinsam mit Wano Muradeli (1908-1970) und Dmitri Schostakowitsch (1906-1975), Sergej Prokofjew (1891-1953) und Nikolai Mjaskowski (1881-1950) als ,Formalisten'. Gedemütigt suchte Chatschaturjan Zuflucht in Filmkompositionen: Die russische Frage (Regie: Michail Romm, 1948), Wladimir Iljitsch Lenin (Regie: Michail Romm, 1948-1949) und Die Schlacht von Stalingrad (Regie: Wladimir Petrow, 1949). 1950 wurde er Kompositionslehrer am Gnessin-Institut, 1952 Professor am Moskauer Konservatorium.

Im November 1953 übte Chatschaturjan in der ,Sowetskaja Musyka' heftige Kritik am Bevormundungssystem des Komponistenverbandes: der Beginn des ,Tauwetters' auf dem Musiksektor. 1958 erfolgte seine offizielle Rehabilitierung. Chatschaturjan erhielt zahlreiche Auszeichnungen, war Juror internationaler Wettbewerbe und bereiste als Dirigent das In- und Ausland. Er starb am 1. Mai 1978 in Moskau und wurde am 6. Mai in Jerewan beerdigt.

Lieder und Improvisationskünste der transkaukasischen Aschugen (Volkssänger) und Sazandaren (Instrumentalisten) in orientalischen Mugamen hatten Chatschaturjan sensibilisiert für komplexe Tonarten und raffinierte Rhythmen. In seinen studentischen Arbeiten schwankte er zwischen ‚modernistischem‘ Experiment (Valse-Caprice cis-moll, 1926), Folklore (Poem cis-moll, 1926) und strenger Form (Sieben Fugen, 1928-1929). Letztere markierten den künftigen Schaffensweg: Einbindung orientalischer Melodik in klassisch-europäische Formen. Impressionistische Klangmalerei, vermittelt durch die Pianistin Elena Bekman-Schtscherbina (1882-1951), inspirierte den Tanz b-moll für Violine und Klavier (1926). Gegen Ende der 20er Jahre jedoch forcierte Chatschaturjan sein Talent für Agitprop-Musik, Lieder und Märsche.

An der Symphonie Nr. 1 e-moll (1934), einem folkloristischen Klangbild in klassischer Form und Instrumentation, orientieren sich auch die übrigen Werke der 30er Jahre: Das Konzert für Klavier und Orchester Des-dur (1936), Poem über Stalin (1938) sowie Filmmusiken. Zur ‚Dekade armenischer Kunst‘ in Moskau (1939) komponierte Chatschaturjan das Ballett Gück. Daraus entstand 1942 das berühmte armenische Ballett Gajaneh. Georgische Lesginka, russischer Tanz, armenischer Schalacho, aserbaidschanische Usundara, kurdischer Säbeltanz und ukrainischer Gopak fanden hier ihre Stilisierung. Abendländische Dreiklangsharmonik kombinierte Chatschaturjan mit transkaukasischen Dissonanzen und Melismen. Das Konzert für Violine und Orchester d-moll (1940) ist ein weiteres Produkt dieser Phase. In der von Kriegsthematik durchsetzten Symphonie Nr. 2 e-moll (1943) kontrastiert armenisch-aserbaidschanische Melodik die mittelalterliche Totensequenz ‚Dies irae‘. Auch das Konzert für Violoncello und Orchester e-moll (1946) reflektiert Ideen der Symphonie Nr. 2. Im gleichen Jahr entstanden Drei Konzertarien, die seiner Frau Nina Makarowa gewidmet sind. Ausgerechnet die 3. Symphonie C-dur (1947), das bombastische ‚Siegespoem‘ mit dreifacher Orchesterbesetzung, Orgel und 15 Trompeten, wurde Opfer der Parteikritik.

Chatschaturjan schrieb noch im selben Jahr den ersten Band seines Kinderalbum für Klavier (1947), ein ‚Laboratorium‘ seiner Kompositionstechniken, und Filmmusik nach Volksliedvorlagen. Letztes Bühnenwerk der Stalin-Ära wurde das Ballett Spartakus (1950-1954): Chromatik symbolisiert das dekadente Rom, Diatonik und Durdreiklänge meinen den Freiheitsdrang der Sklaven.

In den 60er Jahren belebte Chatschaturjan wieder alte transkaukasische Musizierformen: Er schrieb konzertante Rhapsodien für Violine (1961), Violoncello (1963) und Klavier (1968) mit Orchester. Lediglich die 1961 entstanden Klaviersonate zeigte den Ansatz zur Loslösung vom reinen Folklorismus und eine Tendenz zur Materialverfremdung. Mit seinen letzten Werken, Fantasi-Sonate für Violoncello solo C-dur (1974), Monolog-Sonate für Violine solo (1975) und Lied-Sonate für Viola solo (1976), vollzog Chatschaturjan die Rückkehr zur transkaukasischen Melodie.

CHRONOLOGICAL LIST OF WORKS

SEVEN FUGUES

1928-1929

for piano

[Семь фуги для фортепиано · Sem fugi dlya fortepiano]

1. Fugue [4 voci] Moderato ($\text{♩} = 88$)
2. Fugue [3 voci] Allegro giocoso ($\text{♩} = 76$)
3. Fugue [4 voci] Adagio ($\text{♩} = 50$)
4. Fugue [3 voci] Allegro non troppo ($\text{♩} = 116$)
5. Fugue [2 voci] Allegro moderato ($\text{♩} = 132$)
6. Fugue [3 voci] Andante sostenuto ($\text{♩} = 54$)
7. Fugue [3 voci] Allegro marcato ($\text{♩} = 112$)

Duration: 13'

These Seven Fugues came into being in composition class with Mikhail Gnesin between 1928 and 1929. They remained unpublished until almost forty years later Khachaturyan decided to add prelude-like 'recitatives' to each of the fugues (which, interestingly, did not undergo hardly any alterations), and the cycle appeared as Recitatives and Fugues in 1966.

First performance: 29 November 1938, Moscow, Large Hall of the Conservatoire USSR State Symphony Orchestra and Choir – Alexander Gauk (conductor)

► Muzyka Collected Works: Vol. 6 (score)

Poem About Stalin was originally conceived for choir a cappella. This short work, without the symphonic prelude which was added for the final version, received an acclaimed first performance in November 1937 during the Festival of Soviet Music. K. Chebotarevskaya provided a new text in 1983. Some sources mention an alternative version of the text made by Lev Oshanin after Stalin's death. The printed score in Muzyka Collected Works Vol. 6 bears the title 'Poem' (instead of 'Poem About Stalin').

Since no score from the ballet Happiness survived, it is not possible to specify the original orchestration. According to a reduction for piano four-hands mentioned in 'A. Khachaturian' by D. M. Person (Sovetsky Kompozitor, 1979) twelve items from Happiness are so far known: 1. Dance of the pioneers, 2. Entrance of the elders, 3. Dance of the recruits, 4. Farewell, 5. Karineh and her friends, 6. Karineh's dance (from finale to Act I), 7. Meeting of the grape pickers. Karineh's dance with the grape pickers. Dance of the cranes, 8. Dance of the elders, 9. Karineh's dance, 10. Gopak, 11. Shalakho, 12. Lezginka. 'Aram Khatchaturian. A Complete Catalogue' (Le Chant du Monde, undated) mentions an arrangement for piano of these pieces made by Alexander Dolukhanyan in 1939.

Considering the obvious weakness of Ovanesyan's libretto Khachaturyan decided shortly after the première of Happiness to rework the whole ballet. Eventually he entirely withdrew Happiness, and large portions of the work became the musical basis for the ballet Gayaneh, which was completed in 1942. It seems that two symphonic suites from Happiness came into being in 1940, whose specific details are unknown. Russian Fantasy from 1944 is based on a scene from Happiness.

DRAMATIS PERSONÆ: Leonarda – Camillo – Marta – Urbana – Lucencio – Flora – Celia – Otón – Valerio – Lisandro

Première: 14 November 1940, Moscow, Lenin Komsomol Theatre

Sofia Giatsintova (Leonarda) – G. Palin (Camillo) – Galina Sergeeva (Marta) – S. Sokolova (Urbana) – Vladimir Maruta (Lucencio) – B. Vainshelbaum (Flora) – N. Koshkina (Celia) – Rostislav Plyatt (Otón) – Arkadi Vovsi (Valerio) – B. Plonikov (Lisandro) – I. Bersenev (producer) – Sofia Giatsintova (director) – V. Kozlinsky (stage designer) – Vasili Vainonen (choreographer)

According to D. M. Person the material of the incidental music to The Valencian Widow fully corresponds to the Suite (► see below). This is contradicted by the composer's own statement (printed in Vol. 4 of Muzyka Collected Works) saying that he made a suite from the material (thus making changes) and reorchestrated it for large orchestra. However, the score of the incidental music is preserved at the Moscow Lenin Komsomol Theatre Archives. The above list of characters shows a few alterations from Lope de Vega's dispositions – both Urbana and Flora are originally male characters (Urbán and Floro).

SONG OF THE RED ARMY

for voice and piano

Jointly composed by Aram Khachaturyan and Dmitri Shostakovich

Text: Mikhail Golodny (in Russian)

[Песня о Красной Армии · Pesnya o Krasnoi Armii]

Variant title: 'Invincible Red Army'. On 15 March 1944 a newly composed National Anthem of the Soviet Union replaced Pierre Degeyter's 'Internationale', which had been in use since 1917. In 1943 a competition for a National Anthem had been held which eventually was won by Alexander Alexandrov's setting of a text by Sergei Mikhalkov and El-Registan. Among numerous entries there were, according to Erna Meskhishvili, two jointly composed by Dmitri Shostakovich and Aram Khachaturyan: The present work and Unbreakable Union of Free-born Republics (► see below). Manuscripts preserved at the Khachaturyan family archives and at the State Central Glinka Museum.

S y m p h o n y N o . 2 was awarded the USSR State Prize, First Class in 1946. As stated in the commentary of Muzyka Collected Works the composer revised the score of his Second Symphony shortly after its première. The result was, apart from minor changes, a new order of the movements: The Scherzo, 'Allegro risoluto', originally the third movement, was put (and shortened) directly after the opening movement. In 1969 the composer focussed again on this work introducing a number of changes which mainly consist in two major abridgements: in the third movement 6 bars between cue 34 and 35 were cut out and the final movement was shortened

► Muzyka Collected Works: Vol. 11/12/13 (score), Vol. 14 (vocal score by Emin Khachaturyan)

The above mentioned order of ‘Appendix I’ and ‘Appendix II’ of the musical items of Spartacus is based on information by Karen Khachaturian, the composer’s son. He claims that the order of the Appendices I and II was erroneously permuted in Vol. 13 of Muzyka Collected Works. This means that the abridged version of ‘Requiem’ was composed for a Moscow staging of the ballet in 1958, whereas the four pieces ‘Dance of sorrow of the bacchantes’, ‘Nocturnal incident’, ‘Tarantella’ and ‘Saturnalia’ were composed on behalf of the choreographer of the 1956 Leningrad première, Leonid Yakobson. Spartacus was awarded the Lenin Prize in 1959 and Yuri Grigorovich’s 1968 version of the ballet was awarded the Lenin Prize in 1970. The vocal score, Vol. 14 of Muzyka Collected Works (with correct description of the Appendices), was made by Emin Khachaturyan. ARRANGEMENTS: for piano four hands (‘Egyptian Dance’, ‘Egina’s Dance’) by A Gotlib ■ for piano (‘Egina’s Dance’) by M. Zagradov ■ for flute and piano (‘Adagio’) by James Galway (SIK 6844).

- Muzyka Collected Works: Vol. 5 (score)

According to the commentary in Vol. 5 of Muzyka Collected Works the above listed items represent a little more than half of the music from the two parts of the film. The selection and compilation of the musical material was made by the editorial department of Muzyka. The only piece from Ships Storming the Bastions seems to be 'Overture', which originally served as opening piece in the film's second part.

► Muzyka Collected Works: Vol. 5 (score)

The comparison with D. M. Person's listing shows that three items were not included in the above enumeration (adopted from Muzyka Collected Works): 'Hymn No. 2', 'Desdemona's Song' (About the Willow) and 'Soldiers' Song'. Three songs for voice and piano from Otello were printed in Muzyka Collected Works, Vol. 24: 'Song About the Willow' [Песня про иву – Pesnya pro ivu], Umerenno ($\text{♩} = 104$) [Moderately], 'Soldiers' Song' [Песня солдат – Pesnya soldat], Allegro ($\text{♩} = 80$), and 'Desdemona's Vocalise' [Вокализ Дездемоны – Vokaliz Dezdemony], Ne slishkom skoro ($\text{♩} = 72$) [Not too fast]. The latter was ARRANGED for piano solo by the composer in 1978, printed as 'Vocalise' in Vol. 21 of Muzyka Collected Works. Sergei Yutkevich was awarded for Otello the prize for best director at the 1956 Cannes Film Festival.

For a new production of G a y a n e h at the Moscow Bolshoi Theatre in 1957 Khachaturyan commissioned a new scenario from Boris Pletnyov. The result was an entirely different plot retaining only the names of the principal characters. For this new version the composer again re-worked and extended the musical material to overall 50 numbers.
