AVET TERTERYAN

Avet Terteryan (baptised as Alfred Rubenovich Terteryan) was born on 29 July 1929 in Baku, Azerbaijan. His father, Ruben Terteryan, was a renowned physician in Baku. Both parents were amateur singers with well-trained voices. Avet's brother Herman became an opera conductor and his son Ruben became a musicologist and author of the book 'Avet Terterian', published in Yerevan in 1989. Terteryan's widow, Irina Tigranova-Terteryan, is a professor in Yerevan.

In 1948 Avet Terteryan entered the Music Academy in Baku. He continued his studies at the Romanos-Melikian Music Academy in which he registered in 1951. From 1952 onwards, he studied composition with Professor Eduard Mirsoian at the Komitas State Conservatory in Yerevan.

Avet Terteryan occupied a number of offices in Armenian cultural life and administration. From 1960 to 1963 he held the post of Executive Secretary of the Armenian Composers' Union, and was named the Union's Vice President from 1963 until 1965. From 1970 to 1974 Avet Terteryan served as Chairman of the Department of Music in the Cultural Ministry of Armenia. At the same time, he worked as an editor. He was a professor at the Conservatory beginning in 1985, and in the years 1993 to 1994 he gave master classes at the Ural Conservatory in Yekaterinburg. In order to work on his own compositions without being disturbed, he withdrew at regular intervals to the guest house at Dilijan; in 1989 he moved into his own house on Lake Sevan.

In 1992 Avet Terteryan was named President of the Austrian-Armenian Friendship Society. In 1994 he received a stipend of the Federal State of Brandenburg and worked in Wiersdorf for six months. He was promised a one-year DAAD stipend in Berlin in 1995, but Avet Terteryan died on 11 December 1994 in Yekaterinburg, where he had arrived on 6 December in order to participate at a festival dedicated to him. He was cremated in the Pantheon in Yerevan on 19 December.

AWET TERTERJAN

Awet Terterjan (als Alfred Rubenowitsch Terterjan getauft) wurde am 29. Juli 1929 in Baku, Aserbaidschan, geboren. Sein Vater, Ruben Terterjan, war in Baku ein renommierter Arzt. Beide Eltern waren Laiensänger mit gut ausgebildeten Stimmen. Awets Bruder, Herman, wurde Operndirigent, und sein Sohn Ruben Musikwissenschaftler und Verfasser des Buches „Awet Terterjan“, das 1989 in Jerewan erschienen ist. Terterjans Frau, Irina Tigranova-Terterjan, ist Professorin in Jerewan.

1948 trat Awet Terterjan in die Musikhochschule von Baku ein. Er setzte seine Studien an der Romanos-Melikjan-Musikhochschule fort, in die er sich 1951 einschrieb. Von 1952 an studierte er am staatlichen Komitas-Konservatorium in Jerewan Komposition bei Professor Eduard Mirsojan.

Awet Terterjan bekleidete eine Reihe von Ämtern im Armenischen Kulturleben und in der Verwaltung. Von 1960 bis 1963 hatte er den Posten als Exekutiv-Sekretär des Armenischen Komponistenverbandes inne, zu dessen Vizepräsident er von 1963 bis 1965 ernannt wurde. Von 1970 bis 1974 fungierte Awet Terterjan als Vorsitzender der Abteilung Musik im Kultusministerium von Armenien. Gleichzeitig arbeitete er als Herausgeber. Ab 1985 war er als Professor am Konservatorium in Jerewan tätig, und in den Jahren von 1993 bis 1994 gab er Meisterklassen am Ural Konservatorium in Jekaterinburg. Um ungestört an seinen eigenen Kompositionen arbeiten zu können, zog er sich in regelmäßigen Abständen ins Gästehaus von Dilijan zurück, an dessen Stelle ab 1989 sein eigenes Haus am Sewan-See trat.

1992 ernannte man Awet Terterjan zum Präsidenten der österreichisch-armenischen Freundschaftsgesellschaft. 1994 erhielt er ein Stipendium des Landes Brandenburg und arbeitete sechs Monate in Wiepersdorf. Für das Jahr 1995 sprach man im einjähriges Stipendium des DAAD in Berlin zu, doch Awet Terterjan starb am 11. Dezember 1994 in Jekaterinburg, wo er am 6. Dezember angekommen war, um an einem ihm gewidmeten Festival teilzunehmen. Er wurde am 19. Dezember im Pantheon in Jerewan eingeäschert.
